WISCONSIN CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC SEEKS ADULT STRING MUSICIANS
FOR NEW COMMUNITY STRING ORCHESTRA

Adults with previous and current playing experience are welcome.

Milwaukee, WI – January 13, 2011 – The Wisconsin Conservatory of Music is seeking adult string musicians to join its new Community String Orchestra. All adults with previous and/or current experience playing violin, viola, cello, or bass are encouraged to join.

Whether you played as a youngster and would like to renew your skills or you play a bit now and are looking for a challenge, this is an exciting opportunity to experience learning and playing in a friendly and supportive group setting while enhancing your musicianship. Everyone is welcome and all that is needed is rudimentary music literacy and your instrument.

Lead by professional violist/violinist and Conservatory faculty member Laura Rooney, the new Community String Orchestra will meet at the Conservatory's historic Prospect Avenue location on Thursday evenings, 7:30-8:25pm, for 12 weeks, beginning February 10, 2011.

Musicians are asked to purchase the required music book, Fiddler's Philharmonic by Andrew Dabczynski and Bob Phillips (Alfred publishing), prior to the first meeting. Folders and additional sheet music will be provided. Tuition is $96.

Interested adults may call WCM Student Services at 414/276-5760 for more information and to register.

The Wisconsin Conservatory of Music is the oldest and largest non-profit independent music school in Wisconsin. The Conservatory provides the finest musical education and performance opportunities for every stage of life, from the aspiring professional performer to individuals of any age that seeks musical enrichment and self-fulfillment.
